PARK SUNG WOO

*Hello. I'm the artist
Park Sung Woo who draw Marchen -
The Embodiment of Tales*

Last February, I had caused trouble for the readers who read this manhwa for suddenly going on a break without any explanation at the end of chapter 89.

Now let me give you a little explanation about the whole story.

I haven't been feeling well since last summer. I thought that I was out of shape because of fatigue. I worked out, went to the hospital for treatment but I still wasn't getting any better and rather my body was getting worse and worse.

*While drawing manhwa over the last twenty years, I came to a situation where I had to take a break frequently.
I was nervous myself. I had a small bruise while drawing for chapter 89,
but the situation was so unexpected that I was suddenly hospitalised.*

I was expected to be hospitalised for at most two weeks, but at that time my doctor who was feeling that something was strange about my body suggested a complete medical check up. Since I've already been hospitalised, I tried to find out the certain cause.

But...

During the complete medical check up, a pituitary tumor was found. This tumor caused abnormalities in my body's hormones, resulting in various illnesses, causing my condition to deteriorate suddenly. As a result, it has become quite dangerous.

Ultimately, the only treatment was the surgery to remove the tumor and it was a more rare disease than I thought so I spent another few months to schedule the surgery.

I spent more than half a year only for that operation. My plan for taking a break for only at most two weeks had failed and I didn't even have the opportunity to explain my long term-break.

After surgery

I needed quite a long time to get back the grip that could hold pens and I've spent time preparing for multiple rehabilitation treatments

As a result...

Now that I've recovered to the extent that everyday life has been possible, I've come to say my greeting again for a quick return as soon as possible.

After the surgery, my recovery progresses better than expected. I'm also grateful to the editorial department for allowing me to prepare for the previewmanuscript.

There was this situation but I apologize for the long term break without any clarification.

I'll do my best to repay you with a good manuscript from now on

*I will return as Monday webtoon
Next week from December 19*

Thank you.*
